Whether you're just starting the process or think you have everything prepared, this workshop will give you things to think about. There will be a workbook to assist in planning and thinking through many items that are part of the estate organizing process.

The Bible Never Said That: The Matrix Is Real

In 1999 a fun movie called The Matrix came out that vividly articulated a question people throughout the eons have asked: "Is the world we live in real?" Christians throughout our 2,000 years of history have asked ourselves this same question and a related one: "Was Jesus real? Was he fully human as well as fully divine? Did he really live, die, and rise from the dead?" These may seem like strange questions to discuss, but I'd like to have a conversation about how our answers to these questions will fundamentally shape our relationship with God, other people, our community and world, and even our relationship with ourselves as individuals.

1. How to Read Scripture: Experience

What happens when we doubt that the world we live in is real? I went through a period of time in my life where I leaned into questioning the reality of the world we live in. I was going through a time of uncertainty about my own purpose and call. I formally studied Buddhism and Hinduism, both of which question the nature of reality. Looking back, I see that the more I questioned the reality of the world we share, the more the following qualities emerged in my life:

- Less trust in God. Less trust in Jesus
- Less concern for other people
- Less concern for the suffering of others
- More focus on myself, but in a way that was not constructive

It was the faith and care of the people around me, my friends and family, who convinced me to embrace the world we live in. They convinced me to listen to the message of the scriptures that God created the heavens and the earth and called them good. They encouraged me to, Instead of running from disappointment, to accept Jesus's offer of forgiveness and new life.

2. How to Read Scripture: Tradition

Irenaeus and Lyon, one of the second century Christian writers, appealed to the plain meaning of scripture that identified God as the creator, the goodness of material creation, and the reality of Jesus in his life, death and resurrection. Each person you encounter, even people who make your life challenging, are children of God, loved and forgiven like you.

3. How to Read Scripture: Jesus Interprets Scripture

The gold standard of interpreting scripture is Jesus himself. How does Jesus call us to think about the world that we live in? This Lent we are offering a Bible study for children and young families on the Lord's prayer on Sunday evenings at 6 p.m. When the disciples ask Jesus how to pray, he teaches them to pray, "Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name, your kingdom come, your will be done, on earth as it is in heaven." Matthew 6:10

Our world is full of challenges. But it is real. It is good. As attractive as it may seem to want to escape reality, God has given us a good world to share with each other and with him. Jesus asks us to pray that we might be part of his ministry to transform this world to be more like the kingdom of heaven here on earth.

When we believe that God created this world, that Jesus really lived, died, and raised from the dead:

- We trust more in God's goodness and presence with us
- We take the lives of others more seriously
- Take our own lives more seriously

A time for children

Each Sunday, children are invited to join Ms. Vada for the children's sermon and then go to children's church in the rainbow rooms for a lesson, story time and a hands-on activity.

Sing your favorite hymns!
